The future is open.

Funding support is available for part-time students in Wales so that the cost of study isn't a barrier to achieving your goals. The Open University has helped over 2 million students learn around their life. Here's how we could help you too.

Support with living costs

You could get help with your living costs when you study on an Open University part-time course. If you live in Wales, you could get a grant of up to £4,500* per year to help out. As it's not a loan, you wouldn't need to pay it back. That's more support for you while you work hard towards your new future.

You could also get a tuition fee loan to cover the cost of your course, helping make part-time study an affordable reality.

The experts in distance learning

The OU is the only UK university dedicated to distance learning, with over 200 qualifications to choose from. You'll learn online through a mixture of reading, videos and interactive activities.

This gives you the flexibility to study when and where you want. Our unique approach to study means you can work around your job, family or other responsibilities. In fact, over two-thirds of our students balance study with work.

Your future is yours for the taking

You can study most of our courses without any previous qualifications. It doesn't matter what you've studied before or when you last picked up a text book. There's a starting point for everyone with the OU.

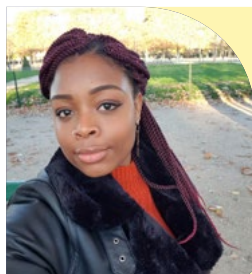

You'll get a top-quality education, with a qualification respected by employers across the country. 87% of our former students say studying with the OU helped them achieve their career goals.

You'll get all the support you need

Distance learning doesn't mean you'll be on your own.

We can help you choose the perfect course and your tutor will provide feedback, expertise and answers to your questions online or over the phone.

You'll also have other students to bounce ideas off on social media or in our online forums.

You can study at home. You could do it in your free time. And you can do all of that while working too.
